

Battle of the River Plate

1939

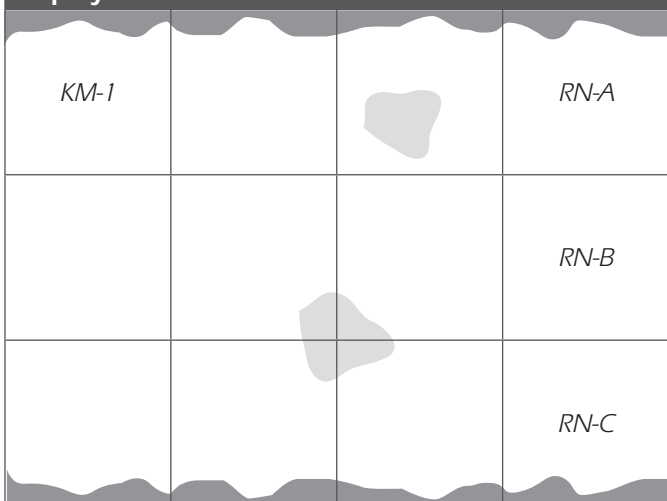

Forces involved

KRIEGSMARINE (KM)
Unit 1: PB Admiral Graf Von Spee.
 ROYAL NAVY (RN)
Unit A: CL Ajax.
Unit B: CA Hexeter.
Unit C: CL Achilles.

Historical notes

The Admiral Graf von Spee was at sea since the beginning of World War II and had sunk several merchant ships. The Royal Navy picked up the strength to go in search of the German ship. The G-Force, the South American Division, comprised the heavy cruiser class County, York type, Exeter and two Leander class light cruisers: the Ajax and Achilles. Unable to divide his force, Commodore English suspected that the German ship would try to take the next shot to the merchant who left the estuary of the Rio de la Plata, between Argentina and Uruguay. The three cruisers gathered off the estuary December 12 and began to maneuver.

Deployment

Conditions of mission

Geo: coastal outlines highlighted on the map, two sandbanks of the approximate diameter of 25 cm
Meteo: calm sea
Speciali: none

Conditions of victory

The objective of the English force is to sink the Graf Spee or damage so that it can no longer operate. The objective of the Graf Spee is to leave the contest area with a capacity for maneuver than their pursuers.

Battle of the Denmark Strait

1941

Forces involved

KRIEGSMARINE (KM)
Fleet 1: BB Bismarck(a); CA Prinz Eugen(b)
 ROYAL NAVY (RN)
Fleet A: BB Hood (1), Prince of Wales(2).

Historical notes

In May 1941, the battleship Bismarck and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen trying to enter the Atlantic forcing the Denmark Strait. The Hood and the Prince of Wales walked in line ahead towards the German ships Bismarck and Prinz Eugen making contact with the Germans in the early morning, May 24, 1941 at about 5:52, with strict orders to sink the Bismarck.

Deployment

Conditions of mission

Geo: offshore
Meteo: calm sea
Speciali: none

Conditions of victory

The objective of the strength of Germany is to release at least the Bismarck on the opposite side of the field, the short side, with ability to move faster than their pursuers. Objective of the English force is to eliminate the Bismarck

